About New Leaf Biofuel

We are committed to San Diego. New Leaf is an established, family-owned business that has been operating in San Diego for more than a decade. We collect used cooking oil from local restaurants and sell the high-quality biodiesel we produce from it into the San Diego market. By reducing carbon emissions and improving the air quality in our community, we help lower asthma and cancer rates locally and help preserve our beautiful San Diego skyline. By using cleaner fuel, our children and grandchildren will get to experience clean, fresh air.

Employees that feel at home at New Leaf value hard work and enjoy taking ownership of their role. They like working in our friendly, open, and honest culture and have a passion for making our community safer and healthier for generations to come.

We do not take noncompliance for an answer. At New Leaf, we are committed to the highest standards of personnel safety and environmental protection. Through rigorous adherence to programs like IIPP, Process Safety Management, and Hazard Communication, New Leaf puts our employees' safety ahead of profits.

About the Position
